THE PHILOSOPHY OF E.M. Marilley and Co. general store: It stays until it sells. That's embodied in the merchandise on the shelves of the 132-year-old store. Goods include old horseshoes and barrels as well as modern outerwear and 1970s polyester pants. The store, shown this month, is for sale, including all of its contents.

GENERAL STORE owner Jim Marilley sits at his desk this month in the store. Marilley, 81, is the grandson of the man who founded the store in 1874. Marilley said he's selling the store because no one in the family wants to take it over.
